

MAN'S NEED HIGH IDEALS

Rev. Richelsen to the Laboring Men.

Advises Them to Be Conservative, but to Strike Hard.

Dr. Helmick Expresses His Views on Revelations and Dr. Pinkerton on Printing.

"The radicals are all right in their place, but it is the conservative parties that are the safe ones to follow in the labor unions."

This was the whole tenor of the Rev. John Richelsen's second address to workmen at the Westminister Presbyterian church last night. It was the first part of the consideration of the subject, "The Political Aspect of Socialism." The church was this time more crowded than before, and at the end of his discourse many of the workmen who had been among the congregation came up to Mr. Richelsen and expressed their appreciation of the work he is doing.

One matter on which he laid great stress was the need for the various grades of labor to stick together. The main theme of Mr. Richelsen's sermon was the most important point which he made was the infusion of an element of conservatism into the labor unions, especially in the leadership.

You lost the sympathy of the public which you ought to have because of the righteousness of your cause, because that cause is often misunderstood by the public. It is misunderstood because of the spirit of anarchy which seems to pervade the plans of the radicals. Many are afraid of the unions because of the radicalism which is so apparent in the thing you also need is a spirit of moderation. I was proud and happy when the cement-makers last week asked me to try and conciliate their differences with the bricklayers. I should have had no part in socialism. The reason why so many people distrust socialism is that they fear the anarchical views which in reality are only held by the noisiest, not by the best or the majority.

"Though I know that there may come times when it is absolutely necessary for a strike, yet I would wish to see you have recourse to strikes only as the last means, only when there is no other way open. But I believe in what President Roosevelt said, 'When you strike, strike hard.' If you have the organization with which you can fight, capital will know it, that you can be sure of a little less whiskey, its righteous demands and those demands will be granted if the right plans follow."

But there is one thing which it will be necessary for the working men to cultivate and that is higher ideals. If men have high ideals they are held together as no confederation for selfish ends can hold men together. And here it is that the church can be of the most service. You that the church has failed, through not having helped the working men in the past, it is now realizing that it needs the working men, and we feel that the working men needs the church. The day is here when the church is making advances toward the little less whiskey and a little more religion would not hurt the labor unions; it would raise our problems to a higher plane.

The second part of the address on the "Political Aspect of Socialism" will be delivered next Sunday evening.

PREACHED ON PRINTING.

Dr. Pinkerton Tells of John Gutenberg and His Work.

"Gutenberg and the Printing Press" was the subject lectured upon by the Rev. Dr. T. W. Pinkerton, who is giving a series of lectures, entitled, "The Men Who Have Made History," at the Central Christian church, last night. The speaker began by showing that God does not confine his revelations to those things called religious, and said that the rise and triumph of the Roman empire was a revelation for the spreading of the Christian religion.

He showed the part played by the invention of printing in the work of God and the salvation of men, by quoting from the history of those times. Wycliffe, he said, had given the world its first reliable translation of the Bible, and the invention of printing was necessary to properly spread its teachings. Gutenberg was born in 1400, a little less than 149 years after he perfected his invention, and the first book printed was the Bible.

The speaker told of how John Faust had cheated Gutenberg out of the invention by forcing a mortgage he held for a slight debt. Faust went to Paris and, after publishing the Bible, was arrested on the charge of being in league with the archbishop, and the latter brought out Faust's secret of multiplying letters. Gutenberg, to whom all the credit was due, died poor and in debt.

Dr. Pinkerton showed the effect that the dissemination of the Bible's teachings and of other books had upon the intellectual and moral growth of the people.

The third lecture of the series, to be delivered next Sunday night, will be on "Savonarola."

DENIES LATE REVELATIONS.

Dr. Helmick Fixes a Standard for Belief.

"A special revelation that does not contain some truth, not already in possession of the individual or the people to whom it is made, may with propriety be challenged as being divine. In these latter-day revelations there is not a character or attribute of deity, not already revealed in the Bible, but what might be the conception of the human mind; nor is there anything given therein for the Government of man's conduct that is not as old as the book before referred to."

These were the revelations of the Mormon church handed by the Rev. Dr. M. Helmick of the First Methodist church in his sermon last night on "The Test of Special Divine Revelation."

The speaker set out at the start that it was necessary for God to reveal himself to man in order that man might have a conception of the Almighty; that simply by reasoning and thinking, man cannot know God, the God of man's conception being no greater than the man who conceived him.

"At no time in the history of the race

MAN'S NEED HIGH IDEALS

Rev. Richelsen to the Laboring Men.

Advises Them to Be Conservative, but to Strike Hard.

Dr. Helmick Expresses His Views on Revelations and Dr. Pinkerton on Printing.

"The radicals are all right in their place, but it is the conservative parties that are the safe ones to follow in the labor unions."

This was the whole tenor of the Rev. John Richelsen's second address to workmen at the Westminister Presbyterian church last night. It was the first part of the consideration of the subject, "The Political Aspect of Socialism." The church was this time more crowded than before, and at the end of his discourse many of the workmen who had been among the congregation came up to Mr. Richelsen and expressed their appreciation of the work he is doing.

One matter on which he laid great stress was the need for the various grades of labor to stick together. The main theme of Mr. Richelsen's sermon was the most important point which he made was the infusion of an element of conservatism into the labor unions, especially in the leadership.

You lost the sympathy of the public which you ought to have because of the righteousness of your cause, because that cause is often misunderstood by the public. It is misunderstood because of the spirit of anarchy which seems to pervade the plans of the radicals. Many are afraid of the unions because of the radicalism which is so apparent in the thing you also need is a spirit of moderation. I was proud and happy when the cement-makers last week asked me to try and conciliate their differences with the bricklayers. I should have had no part in socialism. The reason why so many people distrust socialism is that they fear the anarchical views which in reality are only held by the noisiest, not by the best or the majority.

"Though I know that there may come times when it is absolutely necessary for a strike, yet I would wish to see you have recourse to strikes only as the last means, only when there is no other way open. But I believe in what President Roosevelt said, 'When you strike, strike hard.' If you have the organization with which you can fight, capital will know it, that you can be sure of a little less whiskey, its righteous demands and those demands will be granted if the right plans follow."

DAVIS WAS IN SALT LAKE.

Vice-Presidential Candidate Visited Maj. Downey.

Henry G. Davis' friends and relatives in Salt Lake are feeling greatly elated over his nomination for the vice-presidency. Maj. George M. Downey, who was brought up with the candidate, having lived in the same town in West Virginia, and who is also connected with him by marriage, knows him intimately. When the Salt Lake Tribune visited to Salt Lake a few years ago he was the guest of Major and Mrs. Downey.

His son, Maj. George F. Downey, married the daughter of Mr. Davis, and is connected with the family of Judge Harkness, whose daughter married Thomas Davis, a nephew of Mr. Davis.

"Ex-Senator Davis is a very successful man," said Maj. Downey to the Tribune last night. "His first success was in merchandise, after which he made money with his two brothers in the lumber business. They then acquired several valuable mining properties and the Davis family became prominent as railroad builders."

Mrs. Bert Holden, whose sudden death in Cleveland about four years ago was such a shock to her Salt Lake friends, was a daughter of Senator Davis' brother and, therefore, a niece of the vice-presidential candidate.

CHIN HOP MUST SCRATCH.

Marshal Heywood to Travel With Deported Chink.

United States Marshal E. B. Heywood goes to San Francisco today to see Chin Hop safely off on his return journey to China. He is really taking the trip for his health. He was arrested by Deputy United States Marshal Smith for being unlawfully in the country and taken before United States Commissioner Twomey. As he is well along in years and broken in health, he welcomed the opportunity to get home and lay his bones by those of his sacred ancestors. The Commissioner ordered that he be deported, and Marshal Heywood will see him on board the Belgic, which sails July 11.

When the revelations of the Mormon church handed by the Rev. Dr. M. Helmick of the First Methodist church in his sermon last night on "The Test of Special Divine Revelation."

The speaker set out at the start that it was necessary for God to reveal himself to man in order that man might have a conception of the Almighty; that simply by reasoning and thinking, man cannot know God, the God of man's conception being no greater than the man who conceived him.

"At no time in the history of the race

COLORADO SLEUTH HAS VANISHED

His Alleged Prisoner Cannot Be Found in Ogden City Jail.

E. H. Wilson, the Pueblo detective who claimed to have arrested in Ogden Edward Easterly, the supposed leader of the Cripple Creek, Colo., dynamiters, seems to have left no clue behind, either to his own whereabouts or the place where he concealed his prisoner.

Wilson boarded an eastbound Rio Grande train in this city Saturday night, after having told a friend in confidence that he had Easterly in jail. Ogden and intimating that he was likely to capture several more of the alleged dynamiters before leaving Utah. He claimed that the Colorado authorities had positive evidence that Easterly was in Ogden, and that he was in the mine's union, in the Cripple Creek district, was the man who actually set off the infernal machine under the depot platform at Independence on June 6, which sent eleven non-union miners to eternity. He also claimed that he had Easterly in custody with many others who were in the plot were known to the authorities and it was believed that several of them were in this State.

Wilson was in Ogden for the last week and it is known that he made at least one trip to Ogden. He was very mysterious in his movements and so far as could be learned, took the train for the Colorado authorities here into his confidence. To an intimate friend, however, he confided the object of his quest and the information that he had Easterly in custody with many others who were in the plot were known to the authorities and it was believed that several of them were in this State.

It is known here that Wilson is a detective on the police force of the city of Pueblo, and the information has also been received here that a man named Easterly was suspected of having been implicated in the Independence dynamite outrage. These facts considered together made the claim of the detective in regard to the capture of Easterly appear plausible, but the detective's sudden disappearance at a time when his large game was alleged to have been caught, and the further fact that no man answering Easterly's description has recently been incarcerated in a jail at Ogden, throws doubt upon the story of the capture.

When Detective Wilson left his boarding place in this city Saturday night, he intimated that he might return soon, but in doing so maintained his usual air of mystery, insinuating that there was nothing at all certain about it. There are some who believe that Wilson is the truth when he said that Easterly was in custody; that in consideration of a division of the $2000 reward said to have been offered for the fugitive, he made an arrangement with some of the officials at Ogden whereby the arrest was to be kept quiet, and that in the meantime, while awaiting the arrival of the reinforcements from the Governor, he was to keep Easterly in custody. He is scouting about the mining camps of this State in the hope of apprehending more of the dynamiters.

There are others, however, who believe that Wilson is something of a hot air artist; that he wanted to impress his friend with the idea that he was a great detective, and thought that by imposing upon him the matter of Easterly, he knew that he had not accomplished all that he claimed. As to his having claimed that Easterly was captured there was nothing at all certain about it. There are some who believe that Wilson is the truth when he said that Easterly was in custody; that in consideration of a division of the $2000 reward said to have been offered for the fugitive, he made an arrangement with some of the officials at Ogden whereby the arrest was to be kept quiet, and that in the meantime, while awaiting the arrival of the reinforcements from the Governor, he was to keep Easterly in custody. He is scouting about the mining camps of this State in the hope of apprehending more of the dynamiters.

MURRAY SALOON BURNS.

A Little Water Would Have Prevented Loss.

In an early morning fire at Murray, the frame building at the corner of State and Atwood streets belonging to John Williams was completely destroyed. It was occupied by Wambach & Johnson as a saloon. Loss, by Wambach & Johnson as a saloon. Loss, by Wambach & Johnson as a saloon. Loss, by Wambach & Johnson as a saloon.

The fire was detected about 11:30 by Deputy Marshal John Graham in a little saloon on the corner of State and Atwood streets, and a few pails of water would have extinguished it, but the water was not to hand, and the fire spread rapidly, burning the saloon and the building on the corner of State and Atwood streets.

HER FAITH WAS TRIED.

Christian Science Reader Stood, Though Fainting.

The large congregation at the service in the First Church of Christ, Scientist, yesterday witnessed a most unusual occurrence. Mrs. Gannett, one of the readers, while conducting the service in the customary form, was seen to waver repeatedly, and then faint. With rare composure, however, she held on and refused to give in to the bodily weakness. She fainted several times, holding on to the reading desk to keep from falling to the floor. All this time the other reader kept up the service, and at last the members of the congregation prayed for and administered to Mrs. Gannett, who, to all outward appearances, was in what is commonly called a "dead faint," and in a moment would it be allowed to disturb the congregation, as giving way to physical weakness is alleged to be something the church members do not believe in. After the service the lady was all right again.

EXCURSION RATES

Via Oregon Short Line.

St. Louis and return ..... $42.50
Chicago and return ..... 47.50
Chicago and return via St. Louis 50.00
St. Louis and return via Chicago 50.00
Through Pullman sleepers via Union Pacific and Wabash, leaving St. Louis, Limit 60 days. Transit limit 10 days in each direction.
Tickets on sale Tuesdays and Fridays each week. Stop-overs allowed.

$1.00 TELEPHONES
For Residences.
20 outgoing calls per month. No charge for incoming calls. 25c for excess calls.

$2.00 TELEPHONES
For Residences.
Unlimited service.
ROCKY MOUNTAIN BELL TELEPHONE CO.
Daily Reporter Co., Job Printers,
21 East First South st., Salt Lake.

AMONG THE POLITICIANS

Logan Republican; Hon. Joseph Howell has had a most excellent photograph taken of himself and family. It comprises himself and wife with five sons and five daughters. One could presume that "Teddy" would be most pleased to have such a photograph in his possession.

Morgan Mirror: Morgan county is entitled to the District Senator on both the Republican and Democratic tickets. John Peterson will be nominated on the Republican ticket and Samuel Francis will be the Democratic nominee.

Richfield Reapers: Representative Hawley will very likely be renominated by the Republicans of this county. Thomas J. Jensen of Salina is being talked up by friends. Some talk has been had in favor of A. W. Bohman of Monroe for Representative on the Democratic ticket.

Blanchard Bulletin: Utah's majority for Bryan in 1896 was something like the majority that will be cast against the anti-polygamy plank in 1904.

Richfield Reapers: N. P. Nelson of Mantle made another trip to this county last week. He is engaged with a trip extending all over the State. He says that the chances for the nomination of James Jensen of Salina are very good.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

Special to The Tribune: The non-partisan primary held here last night for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, James Bollo of Richfield, has also been spoken of for the position, but his candidacy will be considered in the event that he is thought impracticable to give the nomination to Wayne or Platte. Dan Hanson of Elsinore is an active aspirant for the position, but his candidacy will be weighed in the same way as Mr. Bollo's.

BY MUZZLE AND MANE.

Wife of Policeman Stops a Runaway as Husband Instructed.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Mrs. Frederick J. Blackshaw is one of those women who believes in her husband's work. Mrs. Blackshaw's husband being a policeman in the Montgomery street (Jersey City) precinct, her neighbors failed to see how she could be of much aid to him.

"When you see a runaway horse coming, grab him by the muzzle with one hand and by the mane with the other, and trip him. It's a baby trick," the policeman told his wife one time in describing his duties as a cop.

Mrs. Blackshaw was in Brinkerhoff street, Jersey City, yesterday afternoon, when along came a runaway horse. It was running like all other runaway horses, wildly and slamming its wagon against everything within reach.

"Grab it by the muzzle with one hand and by the mane with the other," recited the wife of the policeman by rote. She wondered if she could do it. The runaway horse went jumping toward her. She went her hands. The right hand caught the muzzle, and the left hand caught the mane, and to the surprise of Mrs. Blackshaw and the loud cheers of the crowd, who had gathered to take a hand, she swung the animal about.

In one moment the horse would have gone through the store window wagon and all that Mrs. Blackshaw had to do was to hold the animal back on a crook and then the horse kicked the wagon to pieces in its effort to free itself. The plucky woman held on till a grocer's boy who had been driving the horse ran up and heeled her.

HARRISON'S WIDOW WINS.

Court Decides for Her in Regard to Trust Securities.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 10.—After a long contention over the trust fund left by her husband, Mrs. Mary Lord Harrison, widow of Gen. Ben Harrison, has won the suit brought by Russell B. Harrison and Mrs. McKee.

The courts have decided in favor of the widow, holding in effect that the placing of Russell B. Harrison and Mrs. McKee as trustees of the fund was a mere formality, and that the securities entering into the fund were to be held for the benefit of the widow.

The court held, however, that the testator had provided that the stocks and bonds should be sold and the proceeds paid to the widow and her heirs, and that the widow was entitled to their share.

The court held, however, that the testator had provided that the stocks and bonds should be sold and the proceeds paid to the widow and her heirs, and that the widow was entitled to their share.

The court held, however, that the testator had provided that the stocks and bonds should be sold and the proceeds paid to the widow and her heirs, and that the widow was entitled to their share.

The court held, however, that the testator had provided that the stocks and bonds should be sold and the proceeds paid to the widow and her heirs, and that the widow was entitled to their share.

The court held, however, that the testator had provided that the stocks and bonds should be sold and the proceeds paid to the widow and her heirs, and that the widow was entitled to their share.

The court held, however, that the testator had provided that the stocks and bonds should be sold and the proceeds paid to the widow and her heirs, and that the widow was entitled to their share.

The court held, however, that the testator had provided that the stocks and bonds should be sold and the proceeds paid to the widow and her heirs, and that the widow was entitled to their share.

The court held, however, that the testator had provided that the stocks and bonds should be sold and the proceeds paid to the widow and her heirs, and that the widow was entitled to their share.

The court held, however, that the testator had provided that the stocks and bonds should be sold and the proceeds paid to the widow and her heirs, and that the widow was entitled to their share.

The court held, however, that the testator had provided that the stocks and bonds should be sold and the proceeds paid to the widow and her heirs, and that the widow was entitled to their share.

The court held, however, that the testator had provided that the stocks and bonds should be sold and the proceeds paid to the widow and her heirs, and that the widow was entitled to their share.

The court held, however, that the testator had provided that the stocks and bonds should be sold and the proceeds paid to the widow and her heirs, and that the widow was entitled to their share.

The court held, however, that the testator had provided that the stocks and bonds should be sold and the proceeds paid to the widow and her heirs, and that the widow was entitled to their share.

The court held, however, that the testator had provided that the stocks and bonds should be sold and the proceeds paid to the widow and her heirs, and that the widow was entitled to their share.

The court held, however, that the testator had provided that the stocks and bonds should be sold and the proceeds paid to the widow and her heirs, and that the widow was entitled to their share.

DR. M. WALKER AROUSES WRATH

Pretty Woman Thought Her a Masher.

Husband Called to Rescue and the Physician Had Narrow Escape.

One of Tammany's Braves Also Had Little Collision With Man-Dressed Female.

ST. LOUIS, July 10.—One of the exciting incidents of the recent Democratic National convention was caused by a trim little person in a frock coat and silk hat who stepped into one of the boxes just at the moment Tammany was holding its war dance in the delegates' pit, and, after critically looking at the occupants, stepped to the side of the prettiest woman present and coolly took a chair. "You look like a woman suffragist," the intruder said with a flirtatious smile. "You are pretty and still you look as if you possess brains. I was struck with your appearance in the dining-room of the Planters' yesterday and I thought—"

"How dare you, sir?" said his victim, with a frigidity startling in a St. Louis woman. "I shall call my husband. Henry, come here. This person has presumed—"

"You're a nice one," interjected "Henry" with a wrathful glare at the stranger. "A man of your years acting like a member. I'd push your face if it was not for your gray hair. You are daring to flirt with my wife like that."

"Henry" was gathering headway when a companion of the stranger, who had remained in the aisle, rushed into the box and seized the angry husband by the arm. "Keep cool," she said, "that is not a man. That's Dr. Mary Walker of Washington, and she's here to advocate the woman's cause."

The episode was only one of a dozen that have happened to the noted physician in the last two days. The eccentricity that leads her to wear men's dress, and that she is in situations that generally have proved more embarrassing to the unlighted party of the second part than to the doctor.

The doctor was walking with mincing steps through the Southern hotel lobby when she ran into a squad of Tammany braves tucking toward the convention hall. "Pinkie" McGuire, one of the braves, pushed her out, and she once clapped a heavy hand on the wearer's shoulder.

"Say, cull," he growled, through a haze of alcoholic breath, "face you one of our new braves?" If you said yes, you got that lid on fer? Stoppin' only for de main guys, see? You ain't got no badge, so you can't be right. You want to chase dat shiner, or not?"

He was interrupted by a thin voice of protest. "I'm not for anybody," it said.

"Dat's right," wheezed "Pinkie," "dat be with no one, but you won't get into no trouble. Come on and get a tub of mud or a wash of kin."

This invitation was being pushed with alarming hospitality when one of the new braves, a Tammany leader, who recognized the physician, set things right.

FOUND WIFE BY A TUNE.

Deserted Husband Sought for Wayward Spouse with Guitar.

WEST NEW YORK, N. J., July 10.—Anthony Sperner, a professional guitar player, who lives in East Sixteenth street, New York city, went through Adams street, this place, playing an air from the opera "Romeo and Juliet" on his guitar, in the hope that the music would reach his wife, who eloped some time ago from New York. The opera had always been a favorite with his wife. While playing, Sperner kept his eyes on each house as he passed, and soon he saw a woman who appeared at a window in one of the houses. The face only remained for a moment and then was withdrawn.

Sperner immediately went to the office of Recorder Murphy, who issued a warrant for the arrest of the woman and the man with whom she disappeared. A policeman returned to the house with Sperner to serve the warrant, but the couple had disappeared over the back fence.

The train went on.

The train went on.